- At UMD, your "primary name" and "legal name" are different:
  - Your primary name is the name by which you are generally known. It appears on university identification cards, class rosters, and directories of students and employees.
  - Your legal name appears on government issued identity documents such as a passport. At UMD, your legal name must appear on official transcripts, financial aid documents, payroll documents, and other places where a legal name is required by law or university policy.
